Ice Warrior Training Expedition - Spitsbergen, Svalbard

Background

Ice Warrior is all about doing things properly and our Ice Warrior comprehensive training programme demonstrates this. On our flagship expeditions we train all participants to be safe and competent polar travellers, carefully measuring and recording their progress. And that takes time and effort. BUT NOW you can attend any course in isolation and for your own purposes. So whether you're heading towards an Ice Warrior flagship expedition or considering your own expedition you can join us and benefit from Jim's 27 years of polar training experience. Our courses are now modular so can be taken all at once or spread over a period of months/years.

We have a store of equipment in Longyearbyen, Spitsbergen.

Overview

The aim of the week is to experience what Arctic Expeditioning is all about, whether that is putting into practice all that has been learnt from your Ice Warrior Basic and Advanced Polar training courses or just as a standalone experience of Arctic Expeditioning for people who can demonstrate previous experience. By the end of the week you will have a greater understanding of dealing with Arctic conditions, teamwork, and personal administration and have experienced the Arctic up close. We will also be conducting useful research, making this purposeful and worthwhile. Successful completion of this expedition will count towards your training and preparation for a future Ice Warrior Title Expedition.
